A SCHOOL TEACHERS' UNION.

THE proposal submitted to the National Council of Education at Philadelphia, that the school teachers organize a union as a means of advancing their professional interests, is odd only because it comes so belated in the history of such movements. There are so many teachers' associations of various kinds that a national organization having charge of common interests might have been expected long ago, especially as the profession is more or less subject to political influences and teachers must have often felt the need of a solid support to sustain them in their rights.

But the teachers of the schools do not appear to have such need of organized union as do the professors in colleges and universities. School boards are subject to the supervision of a more vigilant public opinion than are university councils. Professors have been discharged under circumstances that would have raised a storm of protest had such wrong been done in the schools. Even their colleagues in most cases have stood silent and made no fight for intellectual freedom. This has been especially conspicuous in departments dealing with questions of sociology, political economy and control of public utilities. But what the school teachers purpose to teach in this respect to-day, the professors may learn to-morrow.

NEW BRAND OF LILY WHITE.

OF A WOMAN convicted of permitting a disorderly house to be maintained on her property, and who was supposed to be half willing to turn State's evidence in a hope of getting a light sentence, if not pardon, her counsel said: "She is Lily white compared with those that wish her to confess."

This was putting a new point on the Lily and the Court could not avoid expressing regret over it. "It is a sad commentary on justice," said he, "that you should seek clemency on the ground as stated by your counsel that your peculiar code of honor does not permit you to betray your own kind."

There is, however, nothing peculiar in the code at all. It is but a part of that "honor among thieves" that has become proverbial. The only novelty is that a learned lawyer and member of the bar should have deemed it "lily white." It is a code of the underworld which appears to have warped the judgment not only of attorneys but of some members at least of the police. What else is the meaning of the denunciation of "traitors to the department"? In all lands and in all ages such codes of honor have had dubious requirements, but in the past these have been left as dark spots; no one called them lily white.

TO DODGE PANAMA TOLLS.

WITH the report that the Hamburg-American Shipping Company purposes to organize a company in the United States to carry on coastal trade through the Panama Canal between the Atlantic and the Pacific seaboard, we get an illustration of how easy it is for cosmopolitan finance to evade the skill and profit by the blunders of nationalism. The report will doubtless be denied. Probably it is not true to-day, but there is no warrant it will not be true to-morrow.

With such a company in operation our ill-considered scheme of granting free passage through the canal to ships in the domestic trade will result in a subsidy to a foreign company. Out of it will come in the end a pooling arrangement similar to that which regulates trade across the Atlantic. There would then be needed more legislation to bolster up the legislation proven to be defective. Thus the purported hidden subsidy in the form of exemption from tolls is not only a violation of treaty obligations but of common sense as well.

EVER THUS IN ARCADIA.

CONTINUANCE of criticism in Germany against the Kaiser's boast of success on his model farms is not without interest. It appears that almost every assertion is contradicted by his neighbors. He said he gets four per cent. cream from his cows; they say he gets less than three. He said his potatoes were good when all around were bad; they say that his potato field was smothered in couch grass. He said his new kind of rye stood up "like the lances of my uhlands"; they say the crop stood poorly. In short, they deny that the biggest return the Kaiser gets from his model farm is a crop of "Byzantine flattery."

These criticisms must not be taken for expressions of disloyalty. They are common to all farming communities and can be heard in all groups of farmers talking about scientific agriculturists. It was ever so in Arcadia. Only among fishermen is a man's word accepted by his friends without question. If the Kaiser wishes to indulge the joy of unrebuked bragging he should sell his farm and buy a trout stream.

The Clock Problem.

To the Editor of The Evening World:
I figure the clock problem as follows: The minute hand, moving 4 inches in 3 minutes; 36 seconds each minute represents 1.5 inches x 60 = 90 inches. Total circumference of dial = 2.1416 = 21.08 inches, the diameter of dial = 2 = 11.08 inches, one-half the diameter or length of minute hand = 5.54 inches.

Marriage Licenses.

To the Editor of The Evening World:
In what States of the Union can a couple get married without having a marriage license?

Marriage licenses are required in all States and Territories except Alaska, New Mexico and South Carolina.

Ratification of the Flag.

To the Editor of The Evening World:
I read that it is considered disrespectful to hoist the American flag by the mainmast or to allow it to remain at half-mast. I believe the American flag is good enough to fly at all and any time, and it should. I think it is more disrespectful that the American flag doesn't fly from more of our public buildings than it does. As the Stars and Stripes are the "Pride of the Nation," who can show me why the flying of it except between sunrise and sunset is disrespectful? I should like to know how and why?

What Girls Read and Why

By Sophie Irene Loeb

AN acknowledged society leader, on a tour through the east side, complained that girls, especially business girls, do not read the right books. She said: "I am afraid that these girls do not read the right kind of books. I have found many of them read 'The Girl Who Helped Build America'." So that girls who would read ONLY for amusement must indeed come to earth as well and search for their right direction.

There is just as fine romance in the recognized histories of the world of real men and women as may be found in the "best sellers." If a girl but put forth the effort to get just that. The libraries are full of them.

Besides, the newspapers have some features along those lines that are certainly worth while. When you can daily pick up a paper and read interesting, as well as instructive, stories, such as "Women Who Helped Build America," a series which not only pleases but creates knowledge for the retentive brain; then, indeed, in the present day, she who runs may read the VERY BEST of works.

The main thing for the young woman to-day is not to read ONE KIND of thing. It is quite natural that too much of one kind of thing breeds discontent. Too much of anything might have the same effect, however.

The idea is to strike a VARIETY that will not only satisfy the imagination, but also any instinct as well. A little DISCRIMINATION in this direction by every girl will result to her own interest.

Think what and why you read!

"S" observed Constance, looking up from a two and a half inch headline, "I think it's about time for Uncle Sam to go down and send them Greasers to bed without their supper. It's just the way they get up these here revolutions just to give the street-cleaning department a chance to get away with more graft on the strength of clean-trides after the bell is over! Honest, yuh can't imagine how nervous it makes me every time I read about em makin' a picture puzzle uv some poor gink with a thirty-eight repeater!"

"Well, it all makes history," I murmured vaguely.

"That's what a flossy gent what called up Long Island City says to me this mornin'. And he was the kind that if there was a call for volunteers 'd board the midnight choo-choo for Canada an' begin swearin' allegiance to George the five times in the mornin'." One uv them dewy, carry-yar-banky-in-yer-cuff pastels, he wuz!

"What sort of history would there have been if there hadn't been war, WAR?" I blazed in self-defense. "Aw, we're not fer makin' history these days; it's the verdant value we're after—the still, small voice that says: 'Just flash me a bit an' watch 'em all stick around! There ain't no money in history. Not in makin' it, writin' about it, nor bein' descended from it! Why, history don't even go in vandered nowadays—so it must be pretty punk!"

"Comma, yuh hoder-carr!" I decided. "If Shakespeare had known yuh'd have put skirts on his shyness!"

"Brush onward!" she warned. "There's quicksand right on that there spot. I never heard of the gent-whate'er it is he out on? But, as I wuz sayin', the most I know uv this Mexico is the 'chile con carne' an' if that eats in any indication uv Mexican temperament—why it's natural that they have these little shootin' recreations every once in a while. That dish is the biggest lemon to the green feller, ain't it? Just think uv clothin' an innocent, childlike stew in a sauce that is concentrated essence uv

Historic Hymns

By Frederic Reddall

Copyright, 1912, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York Evening World).
NO. 11—LUTHER'S HYMN.
His great sacred lyric was named by Heinrich Heine "The Marseillaise of the Reformation," and Frederick the Great called it "The Almighty's Grenadier March."

With the Reformation came a renaissance in hymn-writing. Martin Luther was the first to realize that music and song were valuable helps in religious warfare. He called on poets to write spiritual songs in German, demanding that the "words be quite plain and common, such as the common people may understand; yet pure and skillfully handled." There are many English versions of the words, the one beginning, "A mighty fortress is our God," being, perhaps, the best known.

"Luther composed it words and music, for the Diet of Speire, when, on April 20, 1520, the German Princes made their formal protest against the revocation of their liberties and so became known as Protestants. In the life-and-death struggle that followed it was as a clarion, summoning to battle without fear. Luther sang it to the hilt every day."

A century later, before the battle of Leipzig, Gustavus Adolphus urged his troops to sing it, and it was similarly sung at the battle of Lutzen. Frequently during the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71, the German troops went into battle with Luther's hymn on their lips, and notably at the bloody field of Sedan. Meyerbeer, in his opera of "The Huguenots," introduces the massive melody which is in the best style of the old German chorale. Whenever the German heart is really stirred one is apt to hear the solemn strains of "Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott."

Talent is a thoroughly smart garment and, at the same time, essentially practical. It fills many needs and it belongs in every wardrobe. This one is absolutely without fineness and can be worn with a high collar or a low collar, or with any separate collar or stock. There is a great tendency this season toward the use of rolled-over, double cuffs held by links, and they certainly are pretty, but these wearers who prefer the straight plain ones will find them equally smart and this is a regulation finished with either, for traveling and occasions of dress and plainness. This is a regulation made of fine wash materials and tubs. It is a regulation, able and exceedingly useful. When the laundress is within reach, madras and other cotton and linen fabrics are desirable. This is a regulation.
